

PRINCE2®—Projects in Controlled Environments

is a structured and integrated method for the effective management of your projects. PRINCE2 is recognised on the international scene as a Best Practice and it has become the de facto standard for the organisation, management and control of all types of projects.

PRINCE2® divides the project in phases, thus enabling an improved control over project resources, a speedier response and adaptability to change. The method is "Product based", which means that the project planning focuses on the delivery of results, not on the mere realisation of the activities. A PRINCE2 project is guided by the Business Case (BC) which justifies the aim and the rationality of the expected results. The BC is revised at sensitive points throughout the project to maintain focus on objectives & ensure their realisation. PRINCE2 is not a 'one size fits all' solution; it is a flexible framework that can readily be tailored to any type or size of project.

Benefits of PRINCE2

- Provides an organised and controlled start, progress and end;
- Provides for the explicit recognition of project responsibilities – so that participants understand each other's roles and needs;
- Its focus on product clarifies (for all parties) what a project will deliver, why, when, by whom and for whom;
- Ensures that participants focus on the viability of the project in relation to its Business Case objectives – rather than simply seeing the completion of the project as an end in itself;
- Regular evaluation points with respect to the plan and the business case, as well as flexible decision points;
- A control mechanism for any deviation from the plans;
- A direct participation and maintained communication of the Management and stakeholders, at the right place and time;
- PRINCE2 also offers a common language through the project, laying the foundation for an effective collaboration/communication framework.

Project Management in Africa

We saw that it could help us in such key areas as standardizing the process, controls accountability, ownership and building capability of change, whilst also opening to us opportunities for networking, sharing and benchmarking with other ambitious, global enterprises. As we are already seeing clear improvements in the planning and visibility of change, I would not hesitate to recommend PRINCE2 to other organisations.
